

CONTINUOUS OVATION.

The President's Trip Through the West—He Reaches the City of Omaha Tonight.

Will Attend the Chicago Peace Jubilee and Return to Washington in Two Weeks—Other Distinguished Travelers.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 11.—The President's trip today from Chicago en route to this city, is one continuous ovation. The presidential party passes through Iowa this afternoon, and will arrive here tonight. The President will occupy about two weeks in his trip before he returns to Washington.

DISTINGUISHED PARTY.

Washington, Oct. 11.—The Washington official party, which is to attend the Omaha exposition started yesterday, going by two separate trains over the Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio railroads. Their itineraries are so arranged that the two parties will arrive at Chicago and later at Omaha close to each other. The Presidential party left via the Pennsylvania railroad at 9 o'clock.

The train was a handsome one of four cars, including the sleepers Socrates and Dromio, the dining car Gilsey and the combination car Brutus. At Canton, the Campana with President McKinley was attached. The party arrived in Chicago at 7 o'clock this morning.

From the Baltimore and Ohio Station the other train left a few minutes after 8 o'clock. Aboard it were Gen. Miles and other army officers, the members of the diplomatic corps and the representatives of the press. The train was made up of a combination car, the sleepers Postal, Hector and Kara, a dining car and also a private car.

POLICE COURT.

Henry Schmidt and Ed. Lehrer, the well known grocers, and Harry Miller, colored, were charged with a breach of the peace in the police court this morning. The evidence showed that Miller went into Schmidt's grocery on the South Side and was ordered out. When the proprietor picked up an ax handle and started towards the other, Miller seized a cleaver, and was knocked down. Lehrer was afterwards forced to pick up a knife to keep several of the darkies off him. Schmidt was fined $5 and costs, Miller $1 costs for drunkenness, and the case against Lehrer was dismissed.

Lillie Nemo was charged with entering saloons, and the case was continued until tomorrow.

Will Scott, a negro suspected of being a fugitive from justice, wanted in Alabama for murder, was charged with vagrancy and the case was continued until tomorrow.

CERULEAN SPRINGS SOLD.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Oct. 11.—The hotel property at Cerulean Springs, the summer resort fifteen miles west of this city, on the Illinois Central railroad, has been sold by Goodwin & Pool to Sam Boyd, of Trigg county. Price paid, $7,500. It will be enlarged and handsomely remodeled before next season.

All imports come through the most reliable importers in this country. An exceptionally full line of the highest grade whiskeys, brandies, wines, rums, both imported and domestic, constantly on hand.

DON'T WANT PROSECUTION.

It is Hinted That the Prosecution of Mrs. George, at Canton, May Be Held Up.

Too Much Scandal May Result From the Developments of the Trial of the Accused.

Canton, O., Oct. 11.—It is hinted that Mrs. George, who is under arrest for the murder of Geo. Saxton, may never be tried. It is feared that her prosecution would develop too much scandal as the woman is known to have lived a high life and has many friends.

AFTER THE INDIANS.

General Bacon Orders More Soldiers to the Front.

Walker, Minn., Oct. 11.—General Bacon has ordered two battalions of soldiers from Minneapolis. The Indian situation continues serious and more trouble is feared.

THE KNIGHT TEMPLARS.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 11.—This has been an ideal convention day. The Kentucky commanderies are the center of attraction. The attendance of the Knight Templars is very large.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 11.—Louisville is practically sure of the next triennial convocation of Knights Templars in 1901. There is a general feeling in all the commanderies that the Sir Knights want to visit a southern city next time, and they think there is no place with a better reputation for whole-souled hospitality than Louisville.

WILL LOCATE.

Mr. Desberger Here, Likes the Place and Will Open a Store.

Mr. S. Desberger, who came here to open a clothing store, yesterday took out a retail merchant's license to do business, which seems to render unnecessary the ordinance now before the council exacting a license of $3,000 a year. If given second passage, it could not be made retroactive. Mayor Lang, however, claims that there has been in force another ordinance since 1885 which covers the same grounds, and which will fit the case. Mr. Desberger, however, says he is here to remain, and will establish a business here, which will preclude the authorities classing him with "itinerant merchants."

He has employed an attorney and will fight the case if prosecuted. He will open up in the White building, which will be temporary quarters until he can find a more suitable place for a permanent location.

BOARD OF TRADE.

Mr. Sam Livingston Will Open One Here Monday.

Mr. Sam Livingston, who has been with Mr. H. Weil & Co., for the past several years, has resigned his position, to take effect on the 15th inst., and will Monday morning open up a board of trade in the building under the New Richmond, formerly occupied by Mr. A. S. Lacy.

Mr. Livingston will get quotations from F. G. Logan & Co., Chicago, and Block & Co., St. Louis, and will conduct his business in a strictly legitimate manner, and will have no bucket shop. He is a young man of splendid business qualifications, and will doubtless make a success of his undertaking.

CAN'T GET LABORERS.

The Sewer Men Working With Reduced Forces.

The sewer contractors complain very much because they cannot get the number of laborers they want. Good wages are offered, but today they were able to get but fifty men, when they wanted 150.

They claim it has been this way all along, and that if they could have procured the necessary number of men, they would have made much better progress.

Today the test of the ditching machine will be made in Chicago, and if it proves a success they will buy one. The machine runs by steam, and works on the order of a ferris wheel, the blades of the wheel digging the ditch and the buckets raising the dirt. If it will do one-half claimed for it, it will be well worth the $2,500 charged for it.

BAPTIST ASSOCIATION.

Revs. W. K. Peurod and Lloyd T. Wilson and Mr. V. A. McCutchen left this morning for Antioch church, near Hinkleville, to attend the meeting of the Baptist Association. It convenes there today to last two or

Only Cold Weather Can Now Check Its Dreaded Progress in the South.

The Death Rate, However, Is Light—Many New Cases in Louisiana and Mississippi Towns.

Jackson, Miss., Oct. 11.—The spread of yellow fever continues most alarming, and now nothing but cold weather can check it. There are two new cases here, and many have appeared in Louisiana and Mississippi towns.

BRECKENRIDGE.

Reported That He Will Raise a Row Because He Was Mustered Out.

Don't Like the Idea a Little Bit—But Will Probably Have to Yield.

Washington, Oct. 11.—It is rumored that Gen. J. C. Breckinridge who was yesterday mustered out as a major general of the volunteers, will make a determined protest against his discharge. He claims that he was discharged too prematurely.

LARGE CROWD.

The Fowler Takes Down Quite a Nice Party of Excursionists.

Quite a large crowd of excursionists left this morning on the Dick Fowler for Cairo, to be at the opening of the street fair there today, and to witness the most exciting boat race that has occurred on the Ohio for years.

The Fowler was patriotically decorated from boiler deck to pilot house, and her officers as well as owners were confident she would win the race this afternoon.

BUGGY DEMOLISHED.

Dr. Graves Horse Also Slightly Injured.

Late yesterday afternoon Dr. W. T. Graves was in a barber shop near the Broadway crossing of the Illinois Central. He left his horse outside without hitching him, and the animal, while the doctor was inside, walked away. He turned down Eleventh street and walked deliberately in front of a train of cars being backed by the switch engine.

The buggy was demolished, and the horse was slightly hurt, but it is very fortunate the accident did not result more seriously than it did.

JEFFERSON STREET GRAVELED.

Jefferson street has received fresh gravel from First to Fifth, and looks much better than it did before, but is not very agreeable to travel over. The street roller might be used to advantage where the gravel has been placed. The roller, however, has about been abandoned, and the last seen of it was out in a mud hole in a lot near Harrison and Ninth, well covered with rust.

ANNUAL INSPECTION.

Mr. T. W. Yates and family, of Memphis, are in the city. Mr. Yates is here on his regular tour of inspection, being the representative of a large snuff house. Mr. Jack Mann, who works for the same house, is also here.

LIGHT REGISTRATION.

The Voters Seem to Take Little Interest in It.

This is the last registration day, and the voters who failed to register last Tuesday have not by any means registered today. Up to press time, a light registration was reported from all the precincts, and the indications were that this year's registration would fall far short of last.

TROUBLE IN CAMP.

An Outbreak of the Twelfth New York Regiment Is Feared at Any Time.

The Mutinous Spirit in the Camp Is Spreading and the Situation Is Very Serious.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 11.—Heavy guards are around the jail to protect Provost Guard Kitchen, who killed a private in the Twelfth New York. Three or four members of the regiment last night formed a mob and seized a train with the intention of coming to town and raiding the jail for the purpose of lynching Kitchen. General Wiley and Colonel Leonard were quickly notified and they suppressed the mob. The outbreak was not unexpected and the jail was guarded.

An outbreak by the New York regiment is feared today, and every precaution is being taken to prevent the spread of the mutinous spirit. The situation is very serious and trouble may occur at any time.

NOTES OF THE SCHOOLS.

The Average Attendance Last Week Was 200 Greater Than for the Corresponding Week Last Year—Few Sick.

Friday Afternoon Literary Exercises Have Been Abolished for Lack of Room—Teachers to Resume Literary Work.

The average attendance in the Paducah public schools for the week past was 2,250, or 200 more than the corresponding week last year. The total enrollment is now something near 2,500, and the average attendance is over 90 per cent. of that number.

There is comparatively little sickness in the schools, and there is none that is serious. The only teacher now sick is Miss Laura Hand, who has been ill for three or more weeks, but she is now on the road to recovery.

There has been abandoned, through force of necessity more than anything else, the usual Friday afternoon exercises in the high school room. This is because there is no place for the pupils of the high school to assemble. The rooms are all too small, there now being in the high school 123 pupils. Needless to say, the pupils are very glad of the abolition of the custom of "saying speeches" on Friday.

In the colored school this year there are about the same number of pupils to graduate as there were last year. This is about twelve. The number in the white school is eighteen, with several possibilities.

Supt. McBroome is in receipt of a letter from the superintendent of schools in Hopkinsville, asking what division is made here of the funds between the white and colored schools. In Hopkinsville the schools are conducted separately and the superintendent there, however, that there is a division of the funds is erroneous, as there is none. The white and colored schools here are maintained out of the common fund.

In a few days the teachers will begin their literary work for the year. The forty white teachers have what is known as the "Bay View Reading Circle," which embraces a course in the history of literature that requires four years to complete. The first year German literature is studied, the next French and Spanish, the third English, and the last American. The circle here will this year take up the second course, French and Spanish literature. The circle is said to be one of the best features of education that exists, and last year there were in the country, about 8,000 of the circles.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

(Chicago Record.) According to the report of the surgeon-general of the navy, which was sent out by the Associated Press today, the men-of-war of the United States were the healthiest places in all the world last summer, both afloat and ashore. In the entire navy, of about 24,000 men, there were only eighty-four casualties, including accidents and everything, and of these only seventeen resulted in death.

It turns out that the chaplain of the 2d regiment of volunteer engineers is a celebrated Mormon missionary, Elias S. Kimball, who has been in charge for several years of proselyting work in the south and is credited with a great many converts. Mr. Kimball was appointed through the influence of Senator Cannon, who is himself a Mormon, and a son of George Q. Cannon, one of the elders of the church. It is customary for the president to select impartially representatives of the different evangelical denominations in the appointment of chaplains, but I believe this is the first time the spiritual interests of a regiment of the United States arm have been intrusted to a Mormon.

Mr. Simon, the new senator from Oregon, is a Jew, and the third of his race to hold a seat in the senate. The first was Judah P. Benjamin, of Louisiana; the next was Mr. Moses, of the same state. Both of them were men of distinction and influence. Mr. Benjamin was a member of the cabinet in the Southern Confederacy, and at the close of the war went to London, where he was admitted to the bar and attained a very high position and a lucrative practice.

PICTURE TAKEN.

A Man in the Lockup May Prove to Be a Murderer.

He Denies Being the Man Who Is Wanted, However.

A photograph was this morning taken of a colored prisoner in the lockup who gives the name of Will Scott, and who is believed to be Robt. Harris, who is wanted in Birmingham on a charge of murdering a man named Jim Davis. Cards were received at police headquarters asking that Harris be arrested, and Officer Gray, last evening, in looking in a Court street saloon, discovered the suspect, who was arrested. He admits being from Birmingham, and answers the description precisely, even as to disposition and habits. He was locked up on a charge of vagrancy, and will be tried tomorrow. The chief of police of Birmingham was telegraphed, and he answered to hold the man and send photograph. This was done this afternoon.

HE QUIT DEMOCRACY.

F. H. Haley, of Fort Dodge, formerly chairman of the Iowa Democratic state committee and a member of the present committee, sent a letter to Chairman Townsend resigning from the committee on the ground that the democratic party had become a party of opposition and, doomed to richly deserved defeat.

The cause of Mr. Haley's changed opinion lies in his treatment by the democratic state convention in March three weeks ago. He championed a resolution declaring territorial expansion and was defeated. Amid great confusion a vote was taken and the resolution was declared lost, though Haley says in his letter of withdrawal that he had a majority.

"I do not like the present tendency of the party to which I have been about twelve years of hard work. The last convention was a disaster and refused to discuss one of the most vital questions before the American people. I absolutely refuse to be bound by the decisions of sixty or seventy years ago, when I saw the coming century and splendid responsibilities of the men and women of the present and future."

GOLDFR'S TESTIMONY.

Following from the Middleburgh News gives a soldier's view of the "horror" of Chickamauga. He has been the case whenever a soldier has spoken, Adjutant Cabell substantiated the reports sent by the sensational papers. The adjutant W. E. Cabell, of the Kentucky regiment, came in yesterday morning and remained until Tuesday. From here he went to Lexington, where he will be the commander of the thirty-fourth and after the regiment

SOCIETY NOTES.

The Magazine club will meet next Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock with Mrs. A. R. Meyers, for the purpose of reorganizing for the coming year. Reports will be read from Harper's, Scribner's and Atlantic Monthly.

The meetings are always very entertaining and interesting, and a membership is highly prized by those fortunate enough to belong to the club.

The Young Ladies' Cinque club will meet tomorrow with Mrs. Edward Vaughan. Many were the pleasant entertainments given by this popular club last season, and the present season gives promise of being a repetition of the last season's pleasant diversion.

Mrs. G. Fetter Stickney and little daughter arrived home from a pleasant visit to Mr. Stickney's parents in St. Louis today.

Miss Minnie Matchen Leonard, of Eddyville, arrived in the city yesterday afternoon and left with her sister, Mrs. Wheeler Campbell, for St. Louis today.

Miss Leonard has a host of friends in this city who are always pleased to welcome her arrival.

Have you a camera? If not you must get one right away if you wish to be up-to-date.

Many of our young people have their cameras—and can give the professional photographer pointers—several of them are first class artists and devote a great deal of time to their "hobby."

One young devotee showed me a series of pictures, taken by a friend of her's, showing her in several charming poses.

In one she is in the kitchen cooking a meal; in another she is in the pantry putting up preserves; in another she is in her pretty room "fixing up" her household expense book, and in another she is in the parlor entertaining her best beau, and from her expression she seems to enjoy the last occupation best of all.

They had evidently taken a long ride and were completely tired out. A fallen tree, off from the road a short distance, afforded a very comfortable seat for them. Their wheels were left stacked along the roadside, and their principal occupation seemed to be to get a much needed rest. The young man must have been pleading his case eloquently, if drooping eyes, and a flushed cheek, on the part of the girl meant anything. But probably the ride had caused the beautiful color on her fair cheeks.

"May I kiss you?" he asked, and waited some moments 'er she replied, "A kiss denotes one of three things:—it is a sign of respect, on the forehead a sign of friendship, and a kiss on the mouth is a sign of—ah—something more, which do you prefer?" Something in the words startled the young man for a moment and when he looked at the fair maiden again she had pulled her jaunty cap down over her fair head, and thrust her hands deep in her jacket pocket.

Fur coats and coats trimmed with fur will be universally worn this winter. In fact, fur of all widths will be applied to costumes and hats. Whereas it is a bit early to consider fur garments and their acceptable warmth, they are nevertheless important features of the latest importations at all of the modistes. Gold and beaded gowns will be used to decorate many of the fur garments, and it will be found especially convenient to apply to last season's jackets that are being remodeled. The most fashionable gowns are a flexible bullion braid, worn in harmonious silk colors with the gold. Persian lamb and broad-lam jackets that had blouse fronts last winter are now being remodeled into close-fitting jackets with cutaway tails set on. Many of the new fur coats open down the front to show elaborate waistcoats of velvet over which handkerchiefs of white lace. Wraps are universally cut with a high collar. The latest fashion in fur for this year is white broad-lam. Garments lined with this rare fur will be as scarce as black diamonds, as it is only occasionally that white stillborn lambs are found. Fur coats and capes are lined with bright colored brocades and white satin. Chinchilla will be as popular as it was last season, and it will be used for revers and collars on Persian lamb and sealskin jackets.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Nelson have gone to Chicago to live. They have a host of friends in this city who regret to see them leave, and wish them well in their new home. Mr. Nelson has accepted a position with Mr. A. W. Williams, formerly of this city, and will also represent Friedman, Keller & Co., of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Burnett entertain the As You Like It club Thursday evening, October 13. This is the first meeting of this popular club this season.

Mrs. Hallie Webber, of Poplar Bluff, Mo., arrived today to spend a few days with her mother, Mrs. Fannie Baker. She was accompanied by Miss Pearl Duncan, a charming young lady of Poplar Bluff, who will be her guest for a few days.

Mr. Hal Corbett returned yesterday from a trip to Boston and other eastern cities.

The German club will give the first dance of the season at the Palmer Thursday evening.

Mrs. G. H. Warnekin, of Clarksville, Tenn., will arrive in the city today, on a visit to the family of her uncle, Capt. Joe Fowler. Mrs. Warnekin has always been popular in Paducah society, and her many friends will gladly welcome her coming.

Miss Hattie Settle entertained her friends at a luncheon last Friday evening at her home on North Sixth.

LIQUID AIR.

The Cost of Its Production Has Been Reduced to Ten Cents Per Gallon.

It Will Now Become a Commercial Commodity—Facts About Liquid Air.

[National Advertiser.] Liquid air, the coldest thing known to science, supplying the most wonderful force in nature, is soon to be put upon the market as a commercial commodity.

By means of an invention recently patented the cost of the production of liquid air has been reduced from $6 per gallon to 10 cents per gallon. The production of liquid air on a commercial basis is a proposition that not only affects power-using industries and ice and refrigerating plants, but is also destined to revolutionize many other businesses, develop new industries and to proportionately stimulate the advertising of enterprises affected by its use.

As a medicine liquid air is regarded as the most powerful tonic ever discovered, exceeding even ozone and oxygen. For $1, or perhaps less, one will soon be able to purchase from his druggist a bottle of perfectly pure liquid air, just as one now buys a bottle of cod liver oil or bitters, and with the aid of this pure air consumptives will regain strength and insomnia victims will enjoy refreshing slumbers.

A company has been organized in New York for the purpose of controlling and exploiting the inventions for liquefying air by the process and apparatus of Oscar P. Ostergerg and Moritz Burger, president and vice-president respectively. S. M. Gardenhire is secretary and treasurer. The company is building a plant in New York city, at Ryder avenue and 136th street, with a capacity of fifty gallons per minute, and this plant will be in operation by the first of next January.

Liquid air has the appearance of pure water, with that faint tinge of blue so noticeable in clear and firm ice. It is the air we breathe reduced to liquid form under high pressure and expansion. Its temperature is over 300 degrees below zero, and it supplies force just as steam does and may be utilized in the same manner as steam power is utilized. It is a portable energy and can be bottled and transported, to be released at will. It will drive bicycles, horseless carriages, railway trains, ocean liners—in fact, do anything that steam or electricity or any other mechanical power is made to do.

Liquid air is more intensely interesting than the Roentgen ray or any electrical invention of modern times. One gallon of it reduced to its lowest temperature is equivalent for refrigerating purposes to a ton of ice. A tumbler full placed in an ordinary icechest will maintain a temperature of zero in the refrigerator for twenty-four hours. A quart of the liquid will keep the temperature of a dwelling house at 60 degrees during the hottest summer day. A gallon applied as power for operating an electric dynamo will generate sufficient heat to do the cooking, run the incandescent electric lights, and in winter heat the entire house by electric radiators. It has a higher commercial value than any other known explosive—one gallon of liquid air when chemically treated with alcohol or ether doing the work of $100 worth of dynamite or nitro-glycerine.

At a temperature of 320 degrees below zero liquid air has an expansive power of 2,000 pounds to the square inch and possesses a latent force 100 times greater than steam. As a motive power it is believed to be superior to steam, electricity, compressed air or any known force in nature.

For several years inventive geniuses have been diligently experimenting with liquid air in an endeavor to discover a method of manufacturing it cheap enough for commercial use. It has remained for Oscar P. Ostergerg and Moritz Burger, two civil and mechanical engineers, to perfect such methods. They have invented an apparatus for producing liquid air and reducing it to a temperature of 470 degrees below zero, at which temperature it can be handled with ease and safety. With their apparatus the inventors claim that they can carry the temperature of liquid air to a point where it will freeze—something never yet accomplished in experiments with the liquefaction of oxygen.

The greatest success of the Ostergerg-Burger process, however, is that liquid air can be produced at the trifling cost of 10 cents per gallon.

A perfect system for handling the product has been devised by the General Air & Refrigerating Co., which is building the New York plant. The liquid will be delivered to consumers just as milk or coal oil is delivered, and it can be stored in insulated vessels and handled with perfect safety and convenience. It is believed that liquid air for the purpose of refrigeration will entirely preclude the use of ice in breweries, packing houses, cold storage plants, refrigerator cars, hotels, hospitals and homes. Ice plants will hardly be able to compete with this new agency, and must eventually, it is thought, disappear entirely from large cities.

The possibilities of liquid air were practically demonstrated last Thursday evening, at Prohibition park, Staten Island, by Prof. W. C. Peckham, of the Adelphi academy, Brooklyn, before a large and intelligent audience. Liquid air, at a temperature of 320 degrees below zero, was poured into insulated dishes and passed through the audience for inspection. Experiments showing the expansive force of the liquid were made and demonstrations of its explosive power were given. Then followed some interesting tests showing its potency as a refrigerant. A hollow rubber ball immersed for a few seconds in the liquid became as brittle as thin glass, and instead of rebounding when thrown against the wall, broke into a thousand fragments. An egg dropped into a glass of the liquid required several hard blows with a hammer before it could be broken. A beefsteak (secured for the occasion from a Staten Island boarding house), after being soaked in liquid air, was easily carved with an ax. Ice dipped into the liquid became perfectly dry, resembling gum camphor, a condition explained by the fact that ice to liquid air is two and a half times as hot as steam is to ice. Mercury was frozen solid in less than a minute and absolute alcohol instantly crystallized when poured into the liquid.

In cooling processes liquid air produces a dry and healthful atmosphere. A small quantity of the product could be used in reducing the temperature of a theater, church or auditorium to any point desired. By its introduction theaters may be enabled to keep open during the hottest summer weather, assuring comfort to their patrons and performers. Halls and public buildings, otherwise unbearable in the heated season, could be rendered delightfully cool and inviting. The introduction of liquid air into sick rooms and hospitals would reduce suffering, speed the recovery of the convalescing and save the lives of many fever patients. Sleepless nights due to the hot and humid atmosphere of dog days will be unknown to guests of hotels and occupants of private dwellings when liquid air is used in ventilating the sleeping rooms, for torrid heat may be changed at will to Klondike cold.

The possibilities of liquid air seem to be unlimited and the commercial value of the product is beyond estimate.

ALAS, WHAT IS FAME?

Namesake Portrait Adorning the Walls of the National Capitol.

There is something pathetic in the statement which comes from Washington to the effect that in the portrait gallery of ex-speakers there is one old worthy pictured on canvas who cannot be identified. In the years which have sifted their dust over these guarded memorials, the name of the ex-speaker has disappeared from the portrait, and there is no one who can replace it.

Does not this melancholy announcement conjure up thoughts of the utter vanity of earthly fame? Why do men tie themselves out in the pursuit of this elusive bauble when they have only to pick up some old congressional record and hastily scan its pages to find thereon the names of scores of men who once figured in the world's eye, but who are now as completely dead to its remembrance as if they had never existed on this planet? Such is the goal to which their brilliant speeches and exciting campaigns have at last brought them; and yet undeterred by the fate of these hapless lawmakers men continue to delude themselves with the idea that they have sufficiently impressed the world with their talents or services to make it remember them in after years. In most cases the earth will barely take them back into its lap and throw its mantle of green over their ashes before they will be completely forgotten.

As to the ex-speaker whose namesake portrait adorns the walls of the national capitol there is good reason to believe that he felt himself secure in the remembrance of his fellow countrymen. Occupying one of the highest positions in the nation's gift and flattered by the honors which it brought to him, it is perfectly natural that he should have entertained this confidence; but what sad irony fate made of the ex-speaker's fancied security! Out of the brilliant array of public men who now figure in the nation's councils, how many, when an other hundred years of our national life shall have elapsed, will be numbered among the few illustrious and how many among the multitudinous obscure?—Atlanta Constitution.

RAN FOR THE WRONG CAR.

But He Was Fat and Jolly, and a Philosopher, Too.

Percy is one of the best humored men in the whole world. He is built on much the same style of architecture as Santa Claus, has a dark countenance, laughs on slight provocation, and has a happy way of creating good cheer by the mere fact of his presence. These characteristics sometimes accompany laziness, but Percy is not lazy and it is an easy matter for him to get on a big head of steam at slight provocation. The other day he made a good stroke of business and his first desire was to reach home and tell Mrs. Percy about it. He was in a grand mood. The typewriter, office boy and bookkeeper were all called to help him into his things and when he dashed through the door his hat was on one ear, much of his overcoat was bunched about his shoulders and his necktie was riding the back of his collar.

"Hi there!" he yelled to the motor-man of an approaching car, but the man was looking the other way and the car sped by. Percy yelled and swung his hat till the conductor saw him and waved an invitation to come on. Percy accepted. For a short, fat man he showed himself a rare sprinter. He screwed his face into a knot, humped his back and showed that mixed gait for which men of flesh are peculiar.

"Hit 'er up, Percy," shouted the men on the car. "Let out another link." "Breathe through your nose." "Try a spurt." "Rah, rah," and a dozen other forms of encouragement. It did its work, and with one supreme effort Percy got there, puffing like a porpoise and shining like a lobster. "I'll give you timely notice," he said, sarcastically, to the conductor. "Let me off at Stinson place."

This is a Brush street car. Percy joined in the laugh, paid his fare, told a story while the next corner was being reached and got off the car whistling a melody. He's a fat and jolly philosopher.—Detroit Free Press.

"You're my first and only love," he declared.

"I can believe you," she answered, with a shiver, for they were sitting at least ten feet apart.—Detroit Free Press.

MENTAL VAGARIES.

Queer Tricks the Mind Sometimes Plays on its Possessor.

It was very amusing, and the congregation smiled visibly and broadly. The preacher had just given notice of a meeting and desired to fix it upon the mind of his hearers by repetition. But when he attempted to do so he found his memory had suffered a sudden and complete eclipse. He could do nothing but stare wonderingly at his audience, until some quick wit gave him the key word. It was not absent-mindedness in the sense in which we understand that term, that is, the kind of absence of mind in which Burrows put his watch in the saucepan and stood with an egg in his hand marking time. For only a small part of the preacher's mind was absent. Nor was it vagrant-mindedness, for he was keenly intent on the matter in hand. It was merely the sudden cessation of the operation of a single faculty of the mind by which the knowledge of previous thought is retained. The mind was as respects that faculty obscured as by a cloud shutting out completely all association with the subject before it.

The effect was similar to that which the oculists tell us is produced by the blind point of the eye, which, directed toward an object, fails to convey the impression of it to the mind. For, although, in this instance, the mind as a whole was fixed upon the notice to be repeated, the eclipsed faculty was incapable of response to the call of the will upon it. The result was to produce on a miniature scale the kind of hiatus, or gap, in the mental history of the preacher, which in more extreme cases seems to, and often really does, divide the life of men in two. There are hundreds of well authenticated cases in which, as the effect of accident and disease, persons have lost all knowledge of their previous life, and only recovered it after considerable progress in a second career. And instances are not infrequently where the whole life has apparently been blotted out as completely as if it had never been, when the man has had to begin a new career, to acquire all knowledge over again, as if he were an entirely new personality.

Indeed, all of us have in varying degree some such experience. How often we are embarrassed by a sudden failure to recall a name just at the moment of introduction, or are relieved by its abrupt recovery just at the opportune moment! How feeble our recollection is of whole periods of our past life, and how utter the failure to remember even the most pivotal incidents in it, incidents which have marked a turning point in our history! How frequently we find it necessary to call upon others to fill up the blanks in our own career! Yet these discontinuities only repeat in lesser degree the experience of those to whom life has suddenly become complete a blank that they have forgotten their place in the world, and which we regard with something akin to amazement.

Of course, in what we commonly term absent-mindedness, that is, the state in which the mind is drawn away from the subject in hand by some thread of association, generally the slightest one, but which is, nevertheless, a species of the lapse of memory of which we have been speaking, responsibility is at the minimum. But even then it must exist, as in the case of Colson, an absent-minded scholar, who, in his love of scientific studies, lost sight of his family concerns. When given a letter stating that his brother had been shipwrecked and left naked and destitute on a foreign shore, he exclaimed: "Naked and destitute! Reach me down the last volume of meteorological observations!" The instance furnishes, however, a fair example of absent-mindedness, in that it shows the greater interest which the weakest associations with the present subject have for the dreamer.

Another kind of absent-mindedness was illustrated by Lessing, the German philosopher, when on knocking at his own door and being told by an unobservant servant that he was not at home, he replied: "Oh, very well, I shall call another time." And by La Fontaine, who attended the funeral of a friend, but called upon him a short time afterward. In these cases the absent-mindedness was due to the following of imaginative threads or clues so closely that the mind escaped entirely from all the ties of earthly association. It differed from the lapse of memory of the preacher, in that there was no eclipse of the mind, but merely a detachment of it from present scenes. As an instance of vagrant-mindedness, we recall that of a venerable minister of our acquaintance, who, as he rose to make the opening prayer at a morning service, saw a curly-tailed dog coming down the aisle and crossing in front of the pulpit. It occurred to him to wonder whether another twist of his dog's tail would not lift his hind legs off the ground, a conceit which so overwhelmed him that he was forced to sit down.—Martyn, in N. Y. Observer.

The Eggs Were Forthcoming.

A Frenchman was in an English restaurant and wanted eggs for breakfast, but he had forgotten the English word. So he got around the difficulty in the following way: "Vaiter, vait is that walking in de yard?" "A cock, sir." "Ah? And what do you call the cock's wife?" "The hen, sir." "Ah, you call de childrins of de cock and his wife?" "Chickens, sir." "But vat you call de chickens before dey are chickens?" "Eggs, sir." "Bring me two."—Beverly Times.

HAWAII SINGING MOUNTAIN.

Queer Freaks of Mount Tantalus Near Honolulu.

Mount Tantalus, just outside of Honolulu, can be made to sing any song or run any score in the whole musical repertoire. The natives attribute it all to the ghosts of departed warriors, and to inhabit the fastnesses round about, but science has found the real explanation. The top of this mountain is voiced like a drumhead, and even the most staid nature will thrill and be mystified by its sweetness and melancholy. It is at night time only when the plaintive and strange sounds are heard. At times they are loud and boisterous, like midnight revels, and again they soften into a complete wail. Those voices, which moan and scream and sob about in the night, are believed by superstitious natives to be the spirits of the warriors whose mangled bodies lay at the foot of Pali.

To destroy this pretty illusion is almost barbarous. Still, these sounds so reverently listened to by the natives can be caused by nothing more than the ocean breakers beating on the windward shore, and the plaintive cadence of the calmer surf below, alternating with the angry and wilder seething of the storm above, echoing among the dales and crags of the lofty mountain. The feeling as if the presence of human spirits about you cannot be shaken off, and the weird song of terror as of human voices cannot be hushed nor translated into their sounds by even a strong mind. On a dark night a sensitive and superstitious mind could not endure with comfort the hideous forebodings of the scene. Now, if two persons whose voices should sing from one of the heights, it will be found that the mountain will catch up the song and take it from cliff to cliff, carrying it off into the distance in one direction, and bringing it back in another, until a perfect round is obtained. Then if the two singers suddenly cease their song, the mountains will go on singing it for quite a long time after they are silent.

GET FLESH.

Get Strength, Vigor, Clear Complexion and Good Digestion, Not by Patent Medicine, But in Nature's Own Way.

Any honest physician will tell you that there is but one way to get increased flesh; all the patent medicines and cod liver oils to contrary notwithstanding. Nature has but one way to increase flesh, strength and vigor, mind and body, and that is through the stomach by wholesome food, well digested. There is no reason or common sense in other method whatever. People are thin, run down, nervous, pale and shaky in their nerves simply because their stomachs are weak. They may not think they have dyspepsia, but the fact remains that they do not eat enough food, or what they eat is not quickly and properly digested, as it should be.

Dr. Harlandson says the reason is because the stomach lacks certain digestive acids and peptones, and deficient secretion of gastric juice. Nature's remedy in each case is to supply what the weak stomach lacks. There are several good preparations which will do this, but none so readily as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which are designed especially for all stomach troubles, and which cure all digestive weakness on the common sense plan of furnishing the digestive principles which the stomach lacks. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets give perfect digestion. First effect is to increase the appetite and increased vigor, added flesh, pure blood and strength of nerve and muscle is the perfectly natural result.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest tonic known and will cure any form of stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach. May be found at druggists at 50 cents for full sized package or direct from Stuart & Co., Marshall, Mich.
